

Lektill game outline:

Lektill is a primordial reptilian entity from the Fifth Age. Dwelling deep beneath the crust alongside ancient creatures, it surfaces only rarely to feed on moisture rich soil and bulbis lazul (orbs of power similar to ender pearls) substances that are vital to its timeless existence. Lektill is about 1,600 meters tall.

At the beginning of the story we do not know this but Lektill was created by the main character Mark Samson as a reset button to wipe away a corrupt society and initiate the start of the next society in hopes that one day there is a pure hearted society on earth. Lektill only comes up every several million years to evaluate if society is worthy of existence, if Lektill decides that this society is finally pure than Mark Samson (Lektills creator) will not feed lektill the bulbis lazuls that he needs to live and Lektill will resultingly die, never to judge society ever again. Mark Samson is the creator of Lektill but even he himself does not know that he created Lektill because Mark Samson is an immortal being that lives in a normal human body but reencarnates at the end of each of his human lives. He can only unlock his memories from past versions of himself that span millions of years back when Lektill emerges from the hidden underground. Mark Samson is not always a man in every life and has a different name in every life. Mark Samson is only the name that we know him by for this current life when he is encountering Lektill for the 72nd time which means that he has been reincarnated over and over for millions and millions of years. Because Mark Samson is human and can access all of these human memories that he has experienced through 72 different cycles of human evolution and cultural society (that is different each time but has yielded the same unworthiness of existence until now), he has a wide enough view to correctly assess if the current society is worthy of existence. No legend of Lektill exists because anyone who would remember him has been long dead, so when Lektill emerges from the ground everyone is taken by surprise with little idea of what they should do next.

Lektill does not speak in the way that we humans speak, Lektill communicates by placing emotions in your mind. He is not talking to you in your mind but rather sending a feeling that by itself explains what would usually take hours of conversation. The first interaction with communicating can be overwhelming, even for Mark Samson who is the chosen one and creator of Lektill.

During this story of Lektills coming, Mark must wrestle with the idea of wiping society off the face of the Earth so it can restart and hopefully regrow in a better way. He has so many connections hes made in this life (currently being 23 years old living in a farming town set in midevil new york city) including his mom and long time love interest from his childhood Taylor. Obviously he does not want to see the many people he loves die but he grows to understand the importance of his consideration for either outcome. Throughout the story he must convince himself that humanity (in this 72nd cycle) is good and deserving of life. After receiving a feeling from Lektill that explains all of this and restores Mark Samsons millions of years of memories, Mark travels all throughout society meeting people of all walks of life to determine if society is good. While determining the fate of humanity, he is collecting bulbis lazuls that are hidden in caves all over the world. The purpose of these bulbis lazuls is to feed Lektill if Mark decides humanity should be once again eradicated. Some of these bulbis lazuls have been found by unknowing humans who have turned the bulbs into religious symbols for worship. In some cases, Mark is forced to kill many in order to obtain the bulbis lazul. But his killing of these people, while weighing on his soul, is necessary.

The story starts by showing Mark in his normal life and establishing these important relationships with his mom and others like Taylor. Then, out of no where Lektill emerges and everyone pauses their lives to inspect Lektill. When Mark inspects Lektill, he receives that feeling from Lektill that unlocks all of the hidden memories from past lives and makes him aware of Lektills purpose and the task that awaits Mark. Mark then goes on a journey searching for bulbis lazuls and on the way meets people to help determine if he should eradicate society.
